EXPECT TO ADJOURNRESOLUTION PASSED FOR AD-JOURNMENT AT 4:30 THIS AFTERNOON.

President at Capitol Trusting to Get Through So As to Leave City
This Afternoon.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Aug. 26.—Senator Chamberlain of Oregon today abandoned his filibuster against adjustment of the provision
"state claims" in which Oregon has an interest, go over until December. The house is believed to be agreeable to that.Senator La Follette's filibuster to force a vote on the Penrose resolution was then the only apparent obstacle to adjournment today. Neither house nor senate assembled on time and neither mustered a quorum.
It was said only 46 senators were in the city, lacking 2 of a quorum.
One of these, Senator Heyburn, was reported ill.The first tilt in the senate was over the reading of the journal of Saturday's all night session. Senator La Follette insisted on its being read in full.With Sen. La Follette holding the threat of a filibuster which would indefinitely prolong the session, congress, the senate today passed without a roll call the Penrose resolution to have the Clapp committee investigate the financial transactions between John D. Archibald, George W. Perkins, Col. Theodore Roosevelt and members of congress.
Leaders of both sides declared this forecasted an adjournment probably tonight. The only other possibility to delay was on the general deficiency bill, but leaders had reached an agreement to leave the disputed state claims out of the measure until next session which was expected to be fulfilled. This was said to be agreeable to the house.The house practically had no business under consideration and only waited on the senate.Approval for the expenses of the government in the fiscal year of 1913 amounted to $1,019,626,143.00 according to a statement made to the senate today by Senator Warren, chairman of the appropriations committee.The total is less than that of the last year by $7,046,78 and is $21,000-000 less than the estimate.
At 3:12 this afternoon President Taft left the White House for the capitol expecting to go from there to the 5:35 train to start for Beverly.On motion of Senator Warren the senate recessed from its amendment to the general deficiency bill, this meeting the demand of the house and removing the last apparent obstacle.
At 3:25 the senate adopted a concurrent resolution to adjourn congress at 4:30. It was sent to the house where there was little doubt it would be speedily agreed upon. Immediately upon the passage of the resolution the senate went into executive session.
Senator Clapp, chairman of the special committee investigating campaign expenditures stated after the passage of the Penrose resolution his committee probably would not meet again before Sept. 30.FORESTALLS PANIC

by Conrad Werra, manager of the estry used in the production ignited from the flames of the candles and threatened to result in a serious fire.

scenery and extinguished the fire without serious loss. The incident happened during one of the dramatic climaxes of the play and the fire had been unnoticed by the actors.GUNBOAT VICKSBURG transmission) Aug. 23.—Notice that the American forces in Nicaragua will restore peace has been sent to General Vaca, leader of the revolutionaries at Leon, by George T.

Weitzel, United States minister here.
The leader of the revolution, Gen-ilar notification, but during the revolution outbreak the insurgents hitherto have paid no attention to the protests and letters of the foreign diplomatic and consular representatives.

General Vaca today sent a request to the government for an armistice to last eight days, but was refused by the president and the ministers.
Government forces have abandoned the fortress at Leon which they had used as headquarters and from which they had sent two expeditions against the town itself, which is held by the rebels. The government troops were defeated and driven back on each occasion and finally they decided that their position was untenable.

Counsel Plans His Defense.[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
New York, Aug. 26.—With the appointment of W. J. Flynn, chief of the local secret service department of the aldermanic investigation committee came the news today that the ablest detective in the country will aid Chief Flynn in ferreting out the evidence of police graft and blackmail. It was the committee's plan to meet tomorrow for the purpose of organization.
Counsel for police lieutenant Charles Becker, now behind the bars on the charge of instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, were busy today to plan the defense of the accused police lieutenant. Becker's lawyer is expected to show that the accused is the victim of a gambling plot headed by "Bald Jack Rose," and the men who have verified his "Confession." Rose and these men the counsel will assert, have reason to seek revenge on Becker for acting against them.It will be further alleged that the plot to murder Rosenthal was made three months before he was killed, but the plan was abandoned at the instance of the East Side gamblers. It will be contended that Rosenthal was offered $10,000 to go to Canada, but when he refused to go for less than $25,000, it was decided to make away with him.
Subpoenas will probably be issued today for the appearance of the landlords of disorderly houses and gambling dens before the grand jury in the police graft investigation which has cropped out in the Rosenthal murder case.SUSPECT FOUL PLAY

"THE LIFE OF BUFFALO BILL."
in 3 reels

An exact reproduction of the thrilling adventures of Buffalo Bill (Col. W. F. Cody), made under his personal direction and containing remarkable episodes in the life of the last of the great scouts.

Posed for by Buffalo Bill himself, with his great band of Indians, Cowboys and Soldiers, and acted on the exact ground where his great adventures took place, not for a moving picture camera, but for dear life itself.

We first see Buffalo Bill on his beautiful white charger, rambling over this spacious ranch near Cody, Wyoming. The Colonel becomes weary, unsaddles his horse, and lies down for a nap; while asleep he dreams of the days gone by.

He first sees himself on the old Santa Fe trail, before the coming of the railroad. He once more is back with his little band of scouts, ever alert, watchful for the United States soldiers who are camped about 50 miles from the present location of Col. Cody and his Scouts. We see the scouts coming down the hill with their prairie schooners which hold their provisions, also a few settlers who are being escorted by these great warriors. They make camp for the night and are attacked by Indians. A terrific battle ensues, which marks the beginning of the exciting, dramatic action of the film.

TO CLOSE GENERAL DELIVERY SUNDAYS

No Delivery of Mail Except Special Delivery Matter to Be Made Hereafter From Local Post Office.

Hereafter the general delivery window at the post office will be closed on Sundays and no deliveries of mail will be made, except of special delivery letters. This is in accordance with an order issued by the first assistant postmaster general at Washington, following the passage of the postoffice appropriation act. Postmaster C. J. Valentine of this city received official notification of the passage of the act, through a letter dated at Washington, Saturday, part of which read as follows:

"The post office appropriation act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, provides:

"That hereafter post offices of the first and second classes shall not be open on Sundays for the purpose of delivering mail to the general public, but this provision shall not prevent the prompt delivery of special delivery mail."

"Under this law you will close the general delivery carriers' windows and lock boxes and discontinue all deliveries by carriers on Sunday. You will note, however, that special delivery mail is expected and you will therefore arrange to have on duty a sufficient force to handle this mail promptly."

"The department desires to reduce Sunday work to a minimum so that as many of the employees may enjoy a complete day of rest on Sunday."

"You should therefore require only a sufficient number of clerks to report for duty on that day in order that transient mail and the mail collected for dispatch may be handled without delay."

On the first Sunday in April of last year, the Sunday delivery at the carriers' windows was discontinued, and the services of but two clerks have since been required to handle the Sunday mails. Under the new law, the number of clerks on duty on Sundays will be no less, but their hours on duty will be lessened.

The Ruling.
Washington, Aug. 26.—All first and second-class postoffices will be closed on Sundays as a result of one provision of the new postal appropriation bill passed by congress and signed by President Taft.

Every important city in the United States is affected. Hereafter only special delivery letters will pass through on that day and no mail will be placed in lock boxes. Postoffices in several cities have been closed Sundays heretofore. The closing now is compelled by law.

Invitations have been issued by Roy Cole, president of the organization, to the events which are scheduled as follows: Shopiere, Tuesday, Aug. 27; Lima, Wednesday, Aug. 28; Fulton, Friday, Aug. 30; Atton, Saturday, Aug. 31.

Dr. F. H. Brigham will be present at each institute to give an address and conduct the open discussions. Rev. C. P. Andrews of Beloit will lead in the devotionals at Shopiere and Fulton and will speak at Lima and Atton on the subject, "The Value of 'Indominational' Sunday School Work." Rev. T. D. Williams of Janesville will give an address on "The Source of Power," at 10:30, in Lima and Atton.

Rev. C. H. Meyers of Evansville will conduct the devotionals at Lima and Atton and will speak on "Conservation of the Sunday School," at Shopiere and Fulton. Rev. F. W. Hatch of Beloit will be present at Shopiere and Fulton to speak on "The Graded Lessons." Mrs. J. H. Babcock of Milton will give a paper on the home department at each institute.

Leaders in both the Senate and the House prepared for today's session little knowing whether the 62nd congress will end today or will continue for another week. With a double filibuster promised in the Senate and the House standing like a rock against the "state claims" in the general deficiency bill, no one could offer any forecast today as to how the situation might be solved unless by letting the general deficiency bill go on the board and await the next Congress.

Scheme to Sell Photos.
A man in the photograph business has a good scheme for selling his pictures. Every bright day he makes his headquarters at Riverside drive and Ninety-eighth street, where he snaps passing motorists. He takes a record of the license number, hunts up the owner, and if he was not in the auto party finds out who was. The sale of his pictures is an easy matter.—New York Sun.

When you were down on the beach yesterday did you observe this demure lady? She was certainly there, and the camera man snapped her. She hasn't visited the beach quite so often this summer as she did last, on account of the cold weather. She says wading is the best fun ever, though, and hopes it will be hot during the remainder of August and September so she can make up for lost time.

Historic Grapevine.
Under the headline "Old but Sweet" a German agricultural paper publishes a description of what it calls the oldest fruit bearing grapevine in the new world. The vine is on a farm in Roanoke Island, North Carolina, "where it has flourished more than 300 years. It was planted by one of the followers of Sir Walter Raleigh in 1584, and the history of the old vine shows that it has borne fruit every year."

Useless Statistics.
Some statistician has figured out that Americans lose $10,000,000 yearly by leaving sugar in the bottom of their coffee cups. Of course they don't, but still there is a certain fascination about statistics. They are so strikingly useless.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Hay Fever Trips May Be Given Up
NO NEED TO TAKE LONG TRIPS TO THE NORTHERN COUNTRY. CHIROPRATIC, THAT GREATEST OF MODERN SCIENCES, REMOVES THE CAUSE OF HAY FEVER AND YOU GET WELL.

You who are troubled with this most distressing malady should see the Chiropractor at once. Your spine is out of order or the pollen floating through the air at this time of the year would not affect you. Owing to the impingement of the spinal nerve the nerve nourishment that goes to feed the mucous membrane of the throat and nose is held up at the spine and consequently the mucous membrane of the throat and nose become weakened and susceptible to the irritating influence of the pollen in the atmosphere. If the subluxation at the spine is corrected and the normal amount of nerve nourishment is allowed to flow to the mucous membranes they will regain their normal strength and atmospheric conditions will not trouble you.

The same is true of Asthmatic cases. The Asthma sufferer has a subluxation of the spinal column. With this subluxation, removed through Chiropractic, Nature steps in and the relieved organs are strengthened and in a short time the Asthma disappears entirely.

Sport Snap Shots

Eighty Members to the new fourth class have responded to the call of the head football coach at Annapolis as candidates for the 1912 team. Those showing special ability in the early practice will be placed with the varsity squad and the fourth-class team will be formed from the remainder. Among the most promising of the new men is Emerson who played tackle at Dartmouth last season. Regular practice will begin September 2.

There is some gnashing of teeth in Washington by reason of the fact that the Senators didn't get Chick Gandil until May 20. Before the arrival of Chick the percentage was 459 since he became one of Griffith's men the club has had a rating of .692. As the Boston Red Sox percentage is only .693 Washington fans are saying that if Gandil had been with the Senators from the first that team would now be running neck and neck with the Boston aggregation.

Promoter Tom McCarey of Los Angeles is sure he will furnish a great fight on Labor Day. Joe Rivers and Joe Mandot will furnish the excitement and the battle will last 20 rounds.

"Of all the fights held in Los Angeles none will beat this one for evenly matched men," says McCarey. "Rivers and Mandot are finished boxers, and they're sluggers to boot."

"Boston will win the pennant," declares Manager Davis of the Cleveland Naps. "I thought a month ago the Athletics would come strong, but my old club's pitching staff failed to hold up. Connie's team will give the Red Sox a tussle the last few weeks, but they're too far behind to have a chance."

A baseball college will be established somewhere in the south next winter with a major league star at the head of every department. Charlie Carr, once first sacker for the Detroit Tigers and now manager of the Kansas City team in the American Association, will be the proprietor. He went to Detroit recently and got the backing of President Navin on the proposition, which is enough in itself to make it good. The idea is to eliminate a large part of the expense of the spring training trips.

August 26 has been designated by the national baseball commission as the date of each year on which becomes effective the prohibition of the "sale or the release of a player by a minor league club to a major or minor league club within twenty days, or during the drafting period."

The National track and field championships of the amateur athletic union of the United States will be held again in Pittsburgh this year. The dates set are Friday and Saturday, September 20 and 21.

Henry Gehring, middleweight champion of the world, says Chris Jordan is the biggest bluffer that ever happened, and he, Gehring, can prove it. Jordan has been saying the champion was afraid to meet him. "I'll wrestle Jordan at any time or place before the club offering the largest purse or in private," says Gehring, "but Jordan must post a side bet of $1,000."

Defeat for the Y. M. C. The Hanson team won from the leaders by a 4 to 1 score which made their victory decisive. The Hanson team played with determination and their brilliant stick work counted more than anything else in their favor. The teams lineup as follows:

JEANETTE PICKED BY MANY AS THE NEXT WORLD'S HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP

While sport experts will probably back Jack Johnson to win over Joe Jeannette in their coming battle, it looks to a person who has been following the careers of both men that Jeannette will give the champion a great argument. Indeed, many fight fans believe that Jeannette will prove a snag in 'Lil Artha's path, and that when the smoke of their coming fight blows away, a new heavyweight champion will stand before the public.

Jeannette has been gathering momentum for a number of years. He has fought consistently and shown improvement from one fight to another. He has been very shrewdly handled by his manager, Danny McErick, who actually believes that Joe can now down Johnson. At this stage of the game it hardly looks as if either of the men could gain a very decisive advantage in a ten-round battle, although sensational work should be developed during the last. There are many fans both east and west who will pull for Jeannette in the coming battle.

Should Have Used Typewriter.
Sir Henry Irving's writing effectually concealed his meaning and gave openings to watchful men. He once wrote a letter of instant dismissal to a subordinate, who with difficulty deciphered it, and—used it as a free pass to the Lyceum theater in London for years.

A Liberal Education.
The telephone girl never listens on the line, of course, but it has been observed that she becomes an expert on all human weaknesses after about two years' service.—Somerville Journal.

SHEPHERD OF THE HILLS

Capable Company Presented Strong Play of Frontier Life Yesterday Afternoon and Evening.

Depicting a gripping story of frontier life in the Ozark mountains "The Shepherd of the Hills," a dramatization of Harold Bell Wright's novel of the same name, was capably presented at the Myers theatre yesterday afternoon and evening. J. L. Harrington in the title role was the strong character of the cast and was ably supported. Mr. Winterhoff was fitted to his part as Grant Matthews, Jr., and Harry Boyle as Preachin' Bill was another strong character. Miss Ellismers was easily the favorite in the feminine characters. The action of the piece is rapid and intense with incidents which secure strong dramatic situations.

ARE OPTIMISTIC.

Candidates for the various county, legislative and state offices are all most optimistic just at present. Each one firmly believes that his chances of nomination are the best and all anxiously await September 3rd, which will tell the tale.

The real contests lie on the republican side of the fence, at the primaries, and will be most bitterly fought out to the very finish. The main issue of the campaign for legislative offices is the question of repeal of the income tax law. No matter how hard its friends try to defend it, no matter how much money the tax commission devote to showing its benefits, it is the issue plain and simple.

In the senatorial field two of the candidates, Mr. Gettle and Mr. Cunningham, express themselves as favoring alterations in the income law, but do not advocate its repeal. On the contrary, Mr. Whitte, the third candidate, comes out flatly against it, and also insists in a more economical administration of state affairs and a separation of the university from politics.

With due respect to both Mr. Gettle and Mr. Cunningham, Mr. Whitte's platform seems more consistent with the demands of the people as a whole on this subject and he should receive the endorsement of the voters in consequence. His record as a member of the legislature, several years ago and his standing about the state as a business man and employer of labor gives him prestige.

In the assembly proposition, the county has been divided into two districts; in each there are three candidates. Mr. North of Edgerton stands on a unique platform that deserves careful consideration. He is opposed to the income tax in its present form and also stands for a cleaner and better administration of state affairs. Above that he is an avowed supporter of Taft and Sherman, the heads of the republican national ticket, which in itself should recommend him to voters of the district when an alignment on this question should be made and the lines drawn closely.

Mr. Kennedy, the second candidate, is a young man whose qualifications for the office he sets forth most clearly in his campaign statement. He rings true on the repeal and alterations in many of the present state laws and while just entering the political field is making a vigorous campaign.

Mr. Richardson, the third of the first district candidates, has come out strongly in favor of the present income tax law and defends his position. He stands for the law in its entirety and would go to Madison to work hand and glove with the very men who saddled this measure on the state.

In the second district Charles D. Rosa is a candidate for the assembly and stands upon the same basis as does Mr. Richardson. Mr. Rosa which adjusted the income tax assessments recently, and while the general public can not obtain direct information of the workings of the law, however, he makes the statement that but five per cent of the people of the county will pay the tax.

By what right he makes this out that statement Mr. Richardson says but twenty-five farmers in the county will have to pay the increased tax, is not known. County Clerk Lee has refused information on the subject, points out the penalty in the law for making known the figures, and consequently many may be blinded by the statements.

Simon G. Strong is also a candidate in the same district. Mr. Strong's platform is opposed to the income tax law and this should be agreeable to the business interests of his district. Simon Smith, the third candidate, seeks re-nomination. He favors alterations in the law, and like Mr. Strong, is a Taft republican. Mr. Smith has served in the legislature before, has served on the county board, and as mayor of Beloit.

Taking it all in all the outcome promises to be interesting. Figure it out, as you try, the income tax is the rock upon which the candidates will win or split. It is the most important issue in the present campaign and the voter should not neglect careful consideration of it before casting his ballot.

Meanwhile all candidates are optimistic. The crown of victory is merely waiting to be placed on their brows and it is up to the taxpayers, the men who will feel the burden of unjust taxation, the business men whose private affairs have been probed by the state authority, that the data thus obtained can evidently be used for political purposes, who should decide this matter and nominate men who are pledged to protect their interests and not follow the leadership of fanatics in reform.

WILD LIFE NOT ALWAYS SOUND.

In wild and open places where man has little or nothing to do with the conditions of existence which affect birds and beasts, impressive object lessons are sometimes given on the folly of assuming that nature is always sound and wholesome and man alone is responsible for disease and untimely death. This is absurd altogether aside from the violence which is the most common destroyer of wild creatures.

In the region of Great Salt Lake an epidemic is raging among the wild ducks numerous in that part of the country. Dr. Fisher, of the United States Biological Survey, estimates that two million ducks have already perished in Utah alone. Another authority says that one-tenth of the ducks which breed in the marshes around Salt Lake are either dead or dying. Two years ago a similar epidemic raged in the same region and the waters and marshes were literally covered with the ducks that perished.

Still more destructive was the epidemic which ravaged the buffalo herds in East Africa a few years ago. In a region hundreds of miles in extent, one of the toughest and most powerful of all wild animals was almost exterminated by a mysterious epidemic. It struck down the buffaloes by thousands and left only a few survivors in many districts, to build up the herds anew. When Colonel Roosevelt hunted in the region southeast of Lake Victoria Nyanza the buffaloes were only getting fairly started up toward their usual strength in numbers.

Similar scourges have been known to slaughter almost incredible myriads of squirrels and rabbits. Last year there were wide regions in the Canadian Northwest where the rabbits had been nearly exterminated by a pestilence and the wild beasts that prey upon them were starving for want of their accustomed food. Probably some such epidemic killed the remnants of the once enormous flock of passenger pigeons—not the common wood doves or mourning doves—which have utterly disappeared from the United States.

Nature untouched by man is not so sound and man is not so destructive and demoralizing as many persons who are fond of wild life suppose. Life is a tragedy, broadly speaking, where there is no human interference.

Senator La Follette is a republican and, despite the Chicago convention and its outcome, he is going to stick to the G. O. P. There are lots of other men who are in the same boat who see the only salvation of the nation lies with the republicans. The November election will show the usual republican majority despite talk to the contrary.

It is all right to state that Penrose is lying when he says Roosevelt's pre-convention campaign cost three millions but thus far Roosevelt has not given out his figures so that perhaps it did cost that much after all.

The Milwaukee Journal continues to heap abuse on all who differ with them, mistake facts and give the impression they are the wise men of the political arena.

Now Captain Hobson predicts that within fifty years there will be a shipwreck incomparably worse than the Titanic disaster. And the only way to make Hobson cheer up is to have it happen.

The news comes that Nat Goodwin was not crippled when the boat containing him and a fair actress was dashed on the rocks. Perhaps he was merely preparing to be married.

A famous artist left Boston in disgust because he could not find any thing there worth painting. If red was the color he had in mind he LaFollette and Penrose will have Roosevelt in a tight box before they get through with the proposed investigation and it will not reflect credit on Roosevelt from present indications.

The Texas mail robber who picked out one sack, kicked it off the car and let the train go on, probably wanted to recover the letter of resignation he wrote the day before.

The Janesville doctor who seeks a wife has stirred up considerable excitement the country over with his requirements and qualifications of a perfect woman.

Possibly it might be found on close inspection that the fabulous salaries paid to some dramatic and baseball stars are in reality fabulous.

Beloit is having a fair this week that bids promise of waking up the Line city in a manner that will not soon be forgotten.

Mr. Archbold may be on the high seas but it is not safe to call him a liar very often in these days of wireless telegraphy.

County fairs are certain indications of cooler weather. However, it is a bit too early for any real cold days.

The country may as well prepare for a large increase in the lame duck population about two months hence.

THRIFT.

An official of the Netherlands government who has been investigating the condition of the Hollanders who have come to this country says:

"I have not found a dependent Hollander here in my eight months' investigation. Hans has a wooden shoe philosophy, which teaches him that pennies make dollars. He never is in a hurry, but always at work."

Furthermore—"The Dutchman who comes here saves on the average half his day's wages and is therefore soon settled in a neat little cottage of his own."

That's it. The essence of all advice of all the books that have been written on how to get on in the world is embodied in one short sentence:

"Spend less than you earn."

He who sets out to follow that rule finds that great will power is necessary, and in the exercise of that will power he grows strong in accomplishment. He finds he must stint himself and do without things, and that makes him able to endure.

It is far easier to make money than to save it.

In an old book, "Thrift," by Samuel Smiles, is the story of John and Mary, man and wife, employed in a factory. In those days beer was a part of the daily drink. On the day they were married Mary asked John for money to buy two glasses of beer daily for herself.

Well—On their first wedding anniversary John, having a holiday, wanted to take Mary on a visit to her mother, but regretted he did not have the money. Mary went to her hiding place and brought out the price of 730 glasses of beer, which in English money was about $21.

"But where did you get it?" "My pint of beer," said Mary. Which set John to thinking how pennies piled up into dollars. The sequel was that John quit the beer, and in a few years, by making judicious investments, he and Mary owned their own small factory.

"But," says the average American—"Who wants to deprive himself just to save a little money?" Who? Only the wise, who can forego fleeting pleasures for future good.

Providing.

This would be a pleasant country; Yes, a land of milk and honey. Everyone would have the money To accomplish his desires.

Every one of us would prosper; Every wide man, every noodle, Would take in a pile of boodle And would hale it up with wires There would be no anxious moments And no mortgage sharks would haunt us.

And no bill collectors taunt us. In a way we've grown to hate. There would be supreme contentment.

Every moral would be wealthy And astonishingly healthy And quite satisfied with Fate. Everybody would wear jewels. Life would be one constant party For a public hale and hearty.

"Would be pleasant, we'll allow. 'T would be paradise a garden. Such an old man Adam stood on. If the candidates made good on All they're promising just now.

There is many a "good feller" whose wife hasn't found it out.

There are better ways for a young feller to acquire "hoss sense" than hangin' around the village livery stable.

Aloysius Smith, the noted bugologist, claims that he has discovered a microbe that will kill the potato bug. The scheme is to catch the potato bugs and inoculate each one with one or two of these microbes. It may be a tedious task, but potato bugs killed in this way never have to be killed a second time. Mr. Smith expects to organize a stock company for the purpose of selling these microbes to the farmers throughout the state.

Outside of the feller who tries to run a seven-column newspaper in a one-column town, the only man who knows what real trouble is, is the one who has seven marriageable but unattractive daughters.

News Notes in the Future.

While walking along Main street yesterday, Mr. Erastus Hanks picked up a piece of anthracite coal ore as large as a goose egg, which was evidently dropped by some rich person. The curiosity has been on view at the corner drug store all day today and has attracted much attention. The party who lost the ore can secure the same by describing property and paying for this ad.

At the reception last evening, Mrs. T. Wellington Butts dazzled the multitude with an anthracite necklace, some of the larger pieces being almost as large as a 10-cent piece. Mr. Butts has been very successful in his business enterprise recently.

Miss Mazie Blinks is wearing a solitaire anthracite ring on the third finger of her left hand. Wedding bells are heard in the distance.

Mrs. Avery Mudge, wife of our well-known banker, has been arrested in New York on her return from Europe for trying to smuggle a rope of anthracite goods through the customs.

And when she cleaned the kitchen up, She felt quite arobatic, And with a mop she went atop To swat 'em in the attic.

And when she'd had the attic clear, No one did have to tell 'er That she should finish up the job And swat 'em in the cellar.

And when she'd swatted every fly And worked with might and main, The screen door was left open and The house was full again.

The Iceman. The ice man is a pleasant soul. He is a man of cheer. He drops the cake within my box And drinks one pint of beer.

Revenge's Furious Appetite. He who, from a natural sweetness and facility of temper, should despise injuries received, would doubtless do a very great and a very laudable thing; but he who, provoked and nettled to the quick by an offense, should fortify himself with the arms of reason against the furious appetite of revenge, and, after a great conflict, master his own passion, would doubtless do a great deal more.—Montaigne.

How Taste Is Cultivated. People who live in climates where malaria abounds, frequently have to take so much quinine that they get to love the taste of it, and to take it daily, even when they do not need it. Just because it tastes good to them. And yet quinine is one of the bitterest of drugs and these same people, did they move away from the malaria district for a few years, would soon get to detest the taste of it.

WANTS DAMAGES FOR FIFTEEN THOUSAND

DUNDEE, ILLINOIS WOMAN ALLEGES FRAUDULENT MARRIAGE WITH MILWAUKEE KEE MAN.

DEFENDANT ON BAIL

Papers Filed in Circuit Court This Afternoon Make Serious Allegations Against Former Resident.

Through papers filed in the circuit court this afternoon, in an action brought by Estelle Sinnott Peters, of Dundee, Illinois, against Chas. H. Peters, of 1457 Eight street, Milwaukee to recover $15,000 damages, serious allegations are made of a fake wedding and subsequent deceiving of the plaintiff in the action by the defendant.

According to the papers filed, the plaintiff alleges that the defendant has been a married man for twelve years and has a wife living at Milwaukee, Wisconsin. That during the year 1901 in Illinois the defendant and the plaintiff entered into an agreement of marriage at Elgin, Ill., which was not consummated until the 19th of January 1905 at Lombard, Ill., by a man named William G. Stevens, whom the plaintiff alleges passed as a Congregational minister. That the marriage license was secured at Wheaton, Du Page county, Illinois.

The complaint further alleges that the certificate of marriage was made out by Stevens and that she had it for some years when she alleges the defendant took it from her. That she lived with Peters for some years believing she was his legal wife until she learned of his wife in Milwaukee, one which died.

In consequence of said fraud she alleges perpetrated, she asked damages to the amount of fifteen thousand dollars together with disbursements in action. Peters, it is alleged, owns property on South Academy street and he was brought here in March by a decoy letter and placed under arrest on an order from court commissioner Richardson, bail fixed at five thousand dollars, so he would not leave the jurisdiction of the court. This bail was furnished by Sam Tall and Frank Kimball as securities.

Peters is said to have resided in Janesville for several years and it is believed his wife, with whom he is now living in Milwaukee, is a former Janesville girl. He has visited here frequently and has a son living in the city. The case comes up at the next term of the circuit court and promises to be most interesting. John L. Fisher is attorney for the plaintiff who resides with her one child at Dundee, Ill.

MISSING MAN FOUND BY AID OF GAZETTE

Not more than five hours after his brother's letter was published in the Gazette, Charles Shepard, the missing man who was sought for here by his relatives, reported at the police station and left at 4:20 o'clock yesterday morning for Leetonia, Ohio, where his father is lying at the point of death. Shepard has been working on the Joseph Humphrey farm. Before he put in an appearance two men phoned the police station that they knew the whereabouts of the missing man. The police then get letters requesting their aid in the location of missing persons but it is seldom that their efforts meet with such a quick response.

ROB PARISH HOUSE ST MARY'S CHURCH

Nearly Forty Dollars in Church Money Stolen From Room of the Rev. Father Goebel Last Night.

Nearly forty dollars belonging to the parish of St. Mary's church was stolen early this morning by a thief who entered the room of the Rev. Father W. A. Goebel and searched his clothes. The Rev. Goebel did not hear the burglar, but his housekeeper, Miss Mounsey, and his niece, Miss Marguerite Hoffman of Muskogee, Oklahoma, who were asleep in rooms on the second floor, were awakened at about two o'clock by the barking of a small dog. Miss Bourgeois heard footsteps downstairs and called to her niece, thinking she was up. It is believed that the voices and the barking of the dog frightened the thief away. The jewelry and money of Miss Hoffman, which she left lying on her dresser, had not been disturbed. The kitchen ice box had been opened, but nothing was found missing there.

The money stolen consisted of about $36 in pew rents, which had just been turned over yesterday morning by the church treasurer, John Campion, and about $2.50 in candlelight money. The pew rents, with a number of valuable receipts and papers, had been left by the Rev. Goebel in a large purse inside one of his pockets. The other purse was left lying on a wash stand. The smaller purse was found this morning on the floor, and the larger one on the window sill. The receipts had not been taken.

It is thought that the thief entered and departed through one of the windows, as the screens can easily be raised and lowered. The doors had not been opened, and there were no traces of the robber outside.

The parish house was broken into two years ago but nothing was taken. The police are making an investigation.

DIES BY OWN HAND. RATHER THAN AWAIT DEATH FROM CANCER

Paul Olson, Well Known Tobacco Buyer, Shot Himself at Home on West Bluff Street This Morning.

Suffering great pain from a cancer of the stomach, which he knew would cause his death within a very short time, Paul Olson, aged 74, committed suicide at his home, 1150 West Bluff street at 3:15 o'clock this morning by shooting himself in the chest and head with a revolver. The shots awakened his wife, who slept in an adjoining chamber, also the rest of the family. Mr. Olson was found seated lifeless in a chair in the kitchen with the revolver still in his hand. On the table before him stood a lamp, which the family was accustomed to leave burning all night, and beside it lay Mr. Olson's glasses, a pencil and sheet of paper on which Mr. Olson had left a short message to his wife and children. He requested that he be disposed of as soon as possible, that he be given a private funeral, and be buried in an inexpensive coffin. He also requested that William H. Ashcraft, Jr., be his undertaker.

Mr. Olson had been sick since last September, and last October learned that he was suffering with an incurable malady. Since that time he had been in depressed spirits, and he became more and more melancholic. It is believed that he has meditated suicide for some time as last Friday he sent his daughter, Clara, to the bank to have his accounts straightened and spent considerable time in looking over and arranging his papers. He retired as usual last night, and was reclining in the front room when his daughters returned from church. No one heard him get up or move about. He had always kept a loaded revolver in his desk. The weapon was of between 25 and 30 calibre and of obsolete pattern.

The deceased was born in Sausver, Norway, November 24, 1838, and came with his wife to this country forty-two years ago. He has lived most of the time in Janesville, but resided for some time at Edgerton and on a farm. He was a tobacco buyer and had a large acquaintance in the county.

Surviving Mr. Olson are his aged wife, four daughters, Mrs. W. H. Elshorn of Morris, New York, Laura, Clara and Pauline, all living at home and five grand-children. He also has a sister in Norway. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

Bozeman, Mont., Aug. 26.—The famous rose carnivals of Portland and Pasadena have a rival in Bozeman's sweet pea carnival, which was ushered in today under the most auspicious conditions. The entire week will be devoted to festivity and entertainment. The features will include magnificent floral pageants, a sangeft of the German singing societies of Montana and a variety of outdoor sports. The number of early arrivals indicates an immense attendance of visitors later in the week.

Claim Ancient Lineage. Native historians of Afghanistan assert that the inhabitants of their country are the lost ten tribes of Israel. According to these chroniclers, the Afghans are descended from Afghanistan, who was the son of a certain Jeremiah, who was the son of a King Saul. The eastward removal of the seed of Afghanistan is attributed to Nebuchadnezzar.

Peru's Fertile Valleys. The chief agricultural region of Peru consists of a series of fertile parallel valleys running the entire extension of the coast—over 1,800 miles—back to the chain of the Andes, the distance varying from 25 to 75 miles.

Coloring Brass. A color resembling pewter may be given to brass by boiling the casting in a cream of tartar solution containing a small amount of chloride of tin.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

DO YOU WANT TO BE POPULAR?

How many of all the readers of this column could honestly answer that in the negative.

Hunger for food is the most primal and imperative demand of the body. The desire to be liked is the most primal and imperative demand of the heart and mind.

Ruth Cameron has been asked by many readers to analyze the subject of popularity. In doing so, she has, with characteristic thoroughness, talked with a great many people on this subject. Her findings are set forth in a series of articles, each dealing with a quality which makes for popularity. Today's is the first of the series. Don't fail to get them all. Together they make up a sure recipe for being liked.—(The Editor.)

UNSELFISHNESS.

UNSELFISHNESS was far and away the favorite in the naming of qualities which bring popularity. Five people named unselfishness first to one who suggested some other quality, and every time I said "Amen."

There never was a truly popular person who didn't have some of the twelfth commandment spirit about him.

You notice that I say "truly popular." You can buy the imitation kind of popularity at a cheap price, but if you want the real, all-wool-and-a-yard-wide popularity, you've got to pay an all-wool-and-a-yard-wide price for it.

You can buy a cheap and perishable vogue with the copper coil of effusiveness and flattery, but if you want true popularity, real love and admiration, the friendships that are guaranteed to wear a lifetime and wash without fading or shrinking, you've got to buy it with the gold of true heart cordiality, real love for your neighbors, real desire for their welfare.

Gold and iron are good to buy, iron and gold; all earth's fleeces and foci for their like as sold. You know, and popularity is no exception to this rule of payment in kind. If you are going to be popular with people, people have got to be popular with you. If you are going to be liked, you've got to like. And your liking mustn't be just the put-on kind either. Or else the liking you get in return will go no deeper.

There are two women in our neighborhood, a mother and daughter, who are truly popular—that is in the lift-lifting way. I have never heard a word said against them by anyone and I have heard their kindness and sweetness lauded a hundred times. And yet neither of them is beautiful, talented or clever in any way. It is simply that they are, and always have been, unselfishly interested in other people.

It is an old story but a true one. If you want to be popular you must first of all be unselfish.

A WOMAN'S OBSERVATIONS

Edna K. Woolley

very well in their places and nobody likes to see a well-groomed woman better than I do. But one reason why men flock so much together and leave the women to entertain themselves alone, is that the women simply don't know anything about the things that interest men. The women are so wrapped up in their feminine affairs that they're bored to death if we mention anything else; so we sit dumb and read the paper, or we go out and foregather with some of the fellows.

"Now suppose a man spent an hour or so talking about what a time he had to find a good tailor and what a bother it was to go so often to get fitted, and how he just knew that tailor held out half the goods, and how the suit never hung right on the left side, and how he wished he'd selected some other color, and he just knew that extreme style was going out before the suit was worn out, etc., etc., ad infinitum. How long do you suppose a girl would be interested in his conversation?—unless she happened to be dead in love with him and would stand for anything until she was cured.

"Girls scare the men off lots of times just because the men don't know what to talk about that would interest them. Of course, a man can always sit and listen, but that's not the way he learns to fall in love with a girl. It's the one who talks WITH him not AT him, who wins a place in his heart and his respect.

"I want to say to you, my friend, that when women get interested in the big things that affect everybody, when they can talk intelligently about a political situation or a candidate, even if they don't know it all, there are not going to be so many nameless gatherings as of yore. It won't be necessary to rope and hogtie a fellow to get him to go to a party in the evening, and he won't know what to say when he gets there if he or his brother isn't there to break the ice.

"There'll be more weddings when all the women are voting. Yep—I mean it. It's mutual interest that makes weddings, believe me. Men and women will have more opportunities of meeting each other and getting acquainted. A girl won't have to join a Christian Endeavor society or go to a dancing class to meet young men, and a fellow won't have to depend upon the kind of girl who'll smile back at him when he smiles at her on the street.

PAPER BAGS IDEAL FOR INVALID COOKERY.

In invalid cookery the eye must be appealed to, as a dish that is attractive in appearance will be more apt to be tasted; and, tasted, it is up to the cook to make it so savory that not a crumb is left.

When preparing food for the invalid, more pains can be taken, as one dish may be more quickly prepared than one for a family.

Minced Chicken With Toast.—Finely mince the breast of a chicken, add a tablespoonful of cream, the yolk of an egg and a little salt. Lay in a greased paper bag with a small piece of toast. Seal and cook six minutes in a hot oven. Serve in the bag.

Chicken Tea.—Cut up a fowl, break the bones and add two tablespoonfuls of water, seal and place the bag on the rack in the oven. Allow forty-five minutes in a slow oven. Strain and serve.

In paper bag cookery not only is the natural flavor of every article of food preserved, but all undesirable flavors are kept out.

For invalid cookery this is a great point in its favor, as the delicate aroma and flavor of the white meats and those suitable for diet in convalescence are so easily dissipated by cooking.

It was one of our ancient wise men who said "that which pleases the palate nourishes." It is most important that the invalid eat that food which is best for building up and repairing waste.

Filleted Poultry.—Slice a carrot, turnip and an onion; add a little ham, a pinch of sugar and salt, and place in the bottom of a well-buttered bag. Slice the breast of a fowl, lay the slices on the prepared vegetables, sprinkle with melted butter, seal and cook six minutes in a slow oven. Dish the fillets, put the vegetables into a sieve or fruit press, press lightly and pour the gravy over the fillets.

Catarhal Ophthalmia is not an uncommon disease of the eyes of the new-born, but is not due to any specific cause. Carelessness in washing the babies eyes at birth—and subsequently—is the most frequent cause. Other causes are: Exposure of the infant's eyes soon after birth to a bright light; catching cold, smoke, dust, and coming in contact with the eyes. This condition may be prevented by avoiding the things mentioned above, and by washing the infant's eyes with saturated solution of boric acid. Most of all treat as for specific cases. If this condition does come on, irrigate eyes frequently with borax water, or the boric acid solution.

John Comments on Dolly's Home-made Bread

DOLLY viewed with pride the loaves she had just taken from the oven. "I know Mr. John will be just delighted when he sees them," she said to Maggie, the cook, whom she wouldn't entrust with the task of breadmaking.

"I never made bread before," she went on. "But really it isn't difficult. I had an idea it was a great art. John is awfully fond of home-made bread, and he is always wanting it. But I have been afraid to undertake to make it.

"It isn't everybody that can get loaves like them the first time," said Maggie.

Dolly could hardly wait for John to come home, so anxious was she to show the result of her efforts.

"My! They do look fine," said John, when she marched him out to the kitchen and exhibited them.

"Do you know, I believe I could dispose of them for you."

"But I made them for you," expostulated Dolly.

"Oh, yes, of course," said John. "I didn't mean these particularly. But I think I could sell some for you."

"Oh!" exclaimed Dolly, her eyes shining with delight. "Do you think they are good enough for that?"

"I am sure I could," replied John, balancing one on his hand.

"How much do you think a loaf would bring?"

"Oh, ten cents, maybe!"

Dolly did some mental calculating. "I could make a lot of money, couldn't I?"

Visions of what she would buy began dancing through her brain.

"I might make enough to get that Oriental rug for the hall. I want it so much, and it really isn't right to ask you to buy Oriental rugs. And I'll get you a nice, big comfy Morris chair for your den. When do you think you can sell them?"

"I guess right away," replied John, edging for the door. "I noticed as I came home that Centre Street is being paved with Belgian block. Now these loaves are just about the size and shape."

"You mean man," said Dolly, chasing after him as he disappeared through the kitchen door. "You don't deserve to have me roast myself in that hot kitchen making you bread. I have a notion not to give you a single piece!"

"Oh, no, don't," said John enigmatically.

"And I really thought you meant it," murmured Dolly. "And I already had that rug, and a new dress, and a willow plume, and a pair of silk stockings."

"I guess I'll have to pay up," said John. "Which would you rather have. I can't buy the bunch."

"Well," mused Dolly, puckering her forehead. "It's hard to tell. Maybe willow plumes will go out. I do need a new dress, and silk stockings are adorable. And that rug would look lovely in the hall. I guess I'll have a lemonade set. It's so nice to have ice cold lemonade on the porch when friends drop in."

"It's lucky I asked you," said John. "I never would have guessed what you really do want."

of time required depends upon their freshness; overcooking destroys their color and appearance. When done, remove at once from the water and drain. Vegetables are moist and soggy because they are allowed to remain in the water after they have finished cooking.

Fresh, tender vegetables need but salt, pepper and butter to perfect them, but older vegetables are improved by cream sauce or butter sauce. In some cases the liquid they have cooked in can be used as a base for the sauce, but more often cream or milk is needed. A half a onion, cut into small pieces, and added to the sauce gives a fine flavor when you have no meat stock for a base for the sauce. Cubes of bacon cooked with butter beans, string beans and many other vegetables give a richness and tastiness that nothing else can impart.

The vegetable market changes from month to month. Asparagus has been so plentiful is fast disappearing, but corn has taken its place; string beans are in their prime. Tomatoes will be cheaper in a few weeks. Cucumbers and lettuce abound, suggesting delicious salads. And the mint, spey and fragrant calls aloud for spring lamb.

Synach was one of our first early greens and while it is still plentiful it is now thrust in the background to make room for summer squash that Dame Nature thinks is now in its prime. Beets, carrots, cauliflower and cabbage we have always with us, but now they are fresh and tempting.

Most vegetables are difficult to can and they can be purchased canned at all prices so it seems unwise to waste fine summer weather attempting vegetable canning. If you want to experiment along this line wait until September, the vegetables will still be fine and the hottest weather will be past.

Heart and Home Problems

MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a young lady of eighteen and have been keeping company with a young man of twenty, for six months. He has never put his arms around me or kissed me yet. I have gone with other fellows who always kissed me good night. Do you think this gentle man cares for me or is he bashful?

A READER.

He probably cares more for you than all the rest together. But do you think you are quite worthy of a good man's love, when you have let every young fellow you know paw over you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am seventeen and have been going with a fellow two years my senior for nearly a year. My chum goes with his boy friend, and there are always four of us together. My mother does not object to having the fellows come to the house, but she will not allow me to go to any places of amusement with him. (1) Don't you think I am old enough to go out once in a while with a fellow that my mother knows real well? (2) Should a girl take a fellow's arm or should he take hers when out walking?

IRENE.

(1) Your mother probably will not object if you go out together during the day, but the place for all sweet girls is in the home nest at night. I think you have a good mother, dear girl. (2) Neither.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) How can I remove rust and peach stains from a white mink suit? (2) Is it harmful to crimp the ends of my hair? I have long thick hair. (3) How can wrinkles in the forehead be removed? (4) Please give me a good but simple recipe for cake; also for candy—not fudge. (5) I am a girl of fifteen years, 5 ft. 7 in. Am I tall for my age? BLUE EYES.

(1) Javelle Water will take out peach stains. You can get this at the drug store. Rub lemon juice and salt on the rust stains and put in the sun to bleach. (2) It doesn't do it any good. (3) Massage with cold cream and make up your mind not to wrinkle up your forehead any more. (4) Cake recipe: Place in mixing bowl half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 2 whole eggs, 1 teaspoon of any flavoring desired. Put 2 level cups of flour into sieve, add half teaspoon soda and beating teaspoon baking powder to the flour, sift into mixing bowl, then stir altogether and beat one minute. Bake in slow oven until a light brown. Can be used for a layer or a loaf cake.

Candy recipe: Set Foam is easy to make and good to eat. Two cups brown sugar (or half white), three-fourth cup of water, white of one egg beaten stiff. Boil sugar and water until it threads, then pour it into a bowl with a egg same as for frosting, heat it till ready to drop on buttered plates. Nuts or cocoa can be added. (5) You are a little tall for your age, but time will remedy that.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: In a bet with my lover, I bet a kiss against a box of candy. I was sure of winning, but I lost. Now comes the question of whether I should pay or not. I am honest and upright and a girl of my word, therefore I hate to break my promise. Still I do not know it is quite right to pay the debt. Shall I?

PUZZLED.

Tell him you will pay the bet, but that you'll do it in the presence of your whole family, if he insists upon claiming it. Next time don't make such a bet, unless you're engaged to the man.

When Roller Skates Came.

Roller skating, which so many boys and girls enjoy, is of comparatively recent origin. It is said that wheeled skates were known as far back as the eighteenth century, but the four-wheeled skate, as we know it today, was the invention of a New Yorker, who introduced it in 1833. Rapid improvement was made in wheels and bearings. The rollers were first made of turned wood, but these were torn so quickly that substitutes of a harder composition were invented. Hard rubber or paper wheels served for several years, but finally gave way to iron and steel, which, with ball bearings has made the amusement very popular with the younger generation.

The Ideal.

The ideal is, nothing more nor less than the culmination, point of logic, even as the beautiful is nothing more nor less than the summit of the true. The artist people is, thus, the consistent people. To love beauty is to see light. This is why the torch of Europe, that is to say, civilization, was first borne by Greece, who passed it to Italy, who passed it to France. Divine pioneer peoples!—Victor Hugo

"NAPOLEON'S IDEAL WOMAN."

The great Napoleon, in response to a question, once asked by a lady, replied "My ideal woman is not the beautiful society belle or the butterfly of fashion, but the matron who reached middle age in complete preservation of health, with stalwart children by her side."

Thousands of middle aged American women today owe their health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that famous remedy for female ills, which has carried more women safely through the natural changes of her life than any other remedy the world has ever known. If you are ill, it will pay you to try it.

LET THE PEOPLE BE THE FINAL JUDGES?

STATE SUPERINTENDENT CARY WRITES OPEN LETTER TO PUBLIC.

NEW SUGGESTION MADE

That the Voters of the State Select the Men Who Are to be Regents of the University.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction C. P. Cary has made a new suggestion to the voters of the state that they, and not the Governor, select the future members of the state board of regents of the University. His argument is a good one and tried in other states with success and perhaps might be desirable here. Mr. Cary says in an open letter to the public: "I have never yet seen a legislature that the university could not manage and I never expect to see one." Such was the statement of an experienced university regent, a man who had been a close observer of legislatures for many years. He might have said with equal assurance that he had never seen a board of regents that the university could not manage, and did not expect ever to see one.

The university is essentially a self-governing institution. In the past seven years six regents of unusual ability and prominence have resigned. First came Colonel Vilas, next Governor Board, next Regent Hanks declined to serve longer; then followed Pliny Norcross and Magnus Swenson, and now Regent Brittingham. Everyone of these men was deeply interested in the welfare of the university and ready to make great personal sacrifices of time and strength in its behalf. All of them were men of large vision and marked business ability. All but two were Madison men and all were members of the executive committee, a committee that, to a large extent, transacts the business of the institution. Did these men grow weary of well-doing or become so absorbed in their business as to want to quit this public service?

It is probably correct to say that the point of view of the regent body, as a whole, is essentially wrong. When appointed to the office of regent the average man seems unconsciously to take the point of view of the university as an end in itself, and to defend the university at all times, in all places, and in all circumstances. I am not saying that this is the attitude of all the board at all times, or of any one regent all the time, but I believe it is the fundamental, unconscious attitude of the majority of the board of regents always. The university is the creature of the state, established not for itself, or to glorify anybody connected with it, but to serve certain well-defined educational purposes which the state regards as essential to its welfare. The proper point of view, therefore, for a board of regents is that of the intelligent public rather than that of an ambitious institution.

Since the university was created in the beginning by public opinion and has ever since been, and must always be, supported by public opinion, public sentiment and public money, would it not be more in accord with modern ideas to have a board of regents elected by the people instead of a board appointed by the governor? Let no one infer that I intend to criticize the appointments made in the past; I am criticizing the psychological effect the system has on board members. I have made it a point to inquire of competent persons as to the success of the method of election of regents in certain states where such method is in operation. In no case have I found the people dissatisfied with the plan of having the electors of the state choose the regents.

That the university would be opposed to such a method of selecting regents is an easy guess; but it does not follow that the people would not be better satisfied if they were in a little closer contact with the institution, and had a better opportunity to tell the regents from time to time what they think of their stewardship. The university can safely trust the people. It is their university. Danger from politics? That danger is not so serious as one that is inherent in the present method. That danger is that the university may dictate, or at least suggest, to a governor the appointment of regents who will do the bidding of the university in every important matter. As affairs now stand, the university is very remote from the citizens. The people elect the governor; the governor appoints a board of regents; the regents elect a president and the president, with the approval of the board, selects a faculty in a deans. The internal organization is shaped by the university itself. If the citizens of the state wish to modify or even action of the university, what is the method of approach? Literally there is only one, and that is the club of appropriators. But if the university is able to manage the majority of the legislature, even this club is a mere shadow.

In these letters only the high spots have been touched. None of the criticisms have been aimed at individuals. They have dealt with general policies and the system of doing things. The university needs to be saved from itself. It has prospered itself so long and so extravagantly that it seems to believe that it is the brains of the state, and that it should have paternalistic control of the state. The university could remedy its own defects if it would, but it probably will not. The public should not deal harshly with the university or in any way cripple or injure it; but it may well bring to bear such a volume of opinion through its legislature and through its method of selecting a board of regents as to indicate clearly to all concerned that the university is servant and not master; that it is a means to an end, and not an end in itself.

Yours truly, C. P. CARY, State Superintendent.

SIDEWALK KETCHES.

Appendicitis. (By Howard L. Rann.)

APPENDICITIS is an expensive and prehensile ailment which seldom attacks anybody but members of the Upper Ten or people who are able to write a check in four figures.

It is caused by the verminiform appendix swelling a grape seed the wrong way and refusing to let go. Whenever this happens to one of the common people it is called the stomach ache and the afflicted part is irrigated with alcoholic bitters, but the minute one of the Four Hundred feels a shooting pain in the vicinity of his watch pocket he is operated upon before he can see if there are any holes in his stockings.

The richer a man is the harder he has appendicitis. Some people are not satisfied with the first attack and insist upon having it three or four times, until they can tell by the feeling that they have not only lost the appendix, but the glossary and concordance as well.

Appendicitis is always preceded by a deep feeling of melancholy as if the patient had eaten something which refused to sit down. When it first comes on, people begin to criticize the menu and change rapidly from one boarding house to another, in the hope of securing relief. Some of the disease is scared away by these tactics and the family surgeon becomes discouraged.

The appendix was discovered about twenty years ago by a near-sighted doctor who stumbled onto it while he was hunting for a set of instruments which he had mislaid. From that day to this the medical profession hasn't done much of anything else except hunt the appendix to its lair and decapitate it at heavy expense to the abutting property owner.

The first few cases of appendicitis were considered dangerous, and the patient generally drew his will along with his check. Nowadays, however, a man can be operated upon without removing his necktie and get back before the first inning is over. Some people are lucky, and go through life never knowing whether appendicitis starts in the left side or the calf of the right leg.

ROCK COUNTY FOURTH IN NUMBER OF AUTOS

License Money Collected From Motor Car Owners in Rock County Is $4,900.

Rock county is the fourth county in the state in the number of automobiles and motor cycles according to data at the secretary of state's office. The amount of license money which was collected from Rock county for the present year was $4,900. Milwaukee county was first with $27,354, Dane second $6,332 and Racine third with $5,031.

According to the reports in the office of Secretary of State Frear, where all licenses for motor vehicles are issued, there are now in use in the state 23,505 automobiles and 3,816 motorcycles to each 85 persons of our 2,303,860 of population. If the average family consists of five persons, then in Wisconsin every seventh family owns an automobile or motorcycle.

The figures show the total amount of license fees received at that time for automobiles or motorcycle owners, was $124,303 and the law requires that this money shall be divided among the counties, after the expense of administration has been deducted, according as it was contributed by citizens thereof and devoted to the repair and betterment of the public highways outside of cities and villages, except that 25 per cent shall be paid to the state highway fund.

Secretary Frear has now made this apportionment and finds that after deducting the cost of administration which was $18,756.67, there remains $105,546.33 for such distribution. $79,164.25 going to the counties and $26,382.08 to the state highway fund.

Of the $124,303 collected from residents of all the counties more than half is contributed from the counties as follows:

Milwaukee	$27,354
Dane	6,332
Racine	5,031
Rock	4,900
Fond du Lac	4,325
Winnebago	4,068

A TRIBUTE TO LIFE OF GENERAL BOOTH

REV. J. C. HAZEN TELLS OF WORK ACCOMPLISHED BY SALVATION ARMY FOUNDER.

HIS SUCCESS LASTING

Spread of Great Movement Into Every Country of World. Abundant Testimony To Its Benefits.

Rev. Joseph Chalmers Hazen, pastor of the Baptist church, in his sermon at the union meeting last evening, recounted briefly the events in the life of the late General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, and called him "one of the greatest evangelists of modern times through the power and character of whose work a movement which will last through the ages was established."

A man of obscure birth he was raised with little or no education. His early religious training was in the Episcopal church but when a youth he was attracted to Methodist faith by the preaching of an American evangelist and became a convert to the Methodist denomination.

Rev. Hazen reviewed the prominent events in his life subsequent to joining the Methodist church. He went to London at the age of twenty years joining in evangelistic work. He possessed a magnetic power which made him a forceful speaker but he always talked and preached in a plain simple manner that the lowest and commonest could understand.

He was ordained a minister of the Methodist church and for a number of years he continued as a missionary to the lowly and down-trodden, confining his work to the slums and poorer sections of the large cities of England. One of the important events of his life, said Rev. Hazen, was his marriage. A young girl, one of his audiences was impressed by his ability and converted to the Christian faith by his inspiring words, a friendship grew up which resulted in their union. Mrs. Booth was ever the constant companion and inspiration of her husband and not a little of his success was due to her devotion and untiring efforts.

Rev. Hazen pointed out the great turning point in the life of the great evangelist which came when he was asked by the Methodist church to give up his mission work and assume the cares of a regular pastorate. He felt that his work was in the mission field and he hesitated to turn from the sphere of his chosen work. After consulting his wife he decided to withdraw from the Methodist church and to continue alone without support from any church organization, unaided, except for his wife and the love of God.

Many were the reverses he met from this time on. Rev. Hazen told of his plucky fight against the greater odds, opposition came from all sources. From the crowd on the street corner to whom he preached, he received insults and taunts. He was stoned and pelted with mud. From the clergy, even from the bishops of his own Methodist denomination, he received denunciation and anathemas.

Through all this he persevered. Driven from the street corners, he held meetings in a tent until this was torn down by the angry populace. He held a meeting over a saloon until expelled by the irate crowd and from there he went to an old theater.

It was while conducting services in this theater that he instituted one of his great evangelistic tactics. Converts flocked to him and as they came he asked them to join him on the platform. This they did and then he had them tell their experiences to their companions. "Converted thieves and robbers, converted saloon-keepers and drunkards, converted bar-keepers and dive-keepers, people recruited from the lowest depths of society, talked to the people of their own kind, in their own simple, direct way. This method of reaching the people of his flock was the one remarkable step of his life."

Rev. Hazen explained the manner in which the movement founded by General Booth came to be called the Salvation Army. Writing to a friend at another mission he termed his followers as a great Volunteer army, and on sudden thought he struck out the word volunteer and inserted the word salvation. The term held; he had founded the Salvation Army of which he was the General. The workers under him were the other officers and the great organization sprung up quickly.

The speaker pointed out that General Booth owed his greatness to his method of going down into the slums, into the saloons, into the haunts of evil there to bring the teachings of Christ. He penetrated a sphere untouched by the churches and he carried his work to the lowly and unfortunate. He did his work in a spirit of love and sacrifice; he met opposition with prayers of forgiveness and continued in his work undaunted. "You can't crush such an army or such a movement. They tried on one other man, the man of Galilee, with similar results."

The work of the Salvation Army.

is now carried on in 56 nations. Russia being practically the only one to which the great movement is closed. In almost every city the Army does its work. Mr. Hazen called attention to the work which is being done locally and urged for a more active support and co-operation. It was a lasting movement, he said, one which would continue through the ages.

The local Salvation Army post joined in the service last evening which were the last union services of the present summer.

Bill Cannon's house had unbroken command of this view. It fronted on it in irregular, massive majesty, with something in its commanding bulkiness that reminded one of its owner. It was of that epoch when men built their dwellings of wood; and numerous bay-windows and a sweep of marble steps flanked by sleeping stone

"Well, Dominick Ryan," he said, in a low voice, "I saw that."

Lions were considered indispensable adjuncts to the home of the rich man who knew how to do things correctly. Round it spread a green carpet of lawns, close-cropped and even as velvet, and against its lower story deep borders of geraniums were banked in slopes of graduated scarlet and crimson. The general impression left by it was that of a splendor that would have been ostentatious and vulgar had not the studied elegance of the grounds and the outflaring glories of sea, sky and hills imparted to it some of their own distinction and dignity. On the day following their departure from Antelope, Cannon and his daughter reached home at nightfall. The obsequiously-welcoming butler—an importation from the East that the Bonanza King confided to Rose he found it difficult to refrain from kicking—acquainted them with the fact that "Mr. Gene had been up from San Luis Obispo" for two days, waiting for their arrival. Even as he spoke a masculine voice uttered a hail from the floor above and a man's figure appeared on the stairway and ran quickly down. Cannon gave a careless look upward.

"Ah there, Gene," he observed, turning to the servant who was helping him off with his coat. "Come up to town for a spell!"

The young man did not seem to notice anything especially ungracious in the greeting or probably was used to it.

"Yes, just up for a look around and to see how you and Rose were. Got snowed in, didn't you?" he said, looking at his sister.

She kissed him affectionately and drew him to the light where she subjected him to a sharp, exploring scrutiny. Evidently the survey was satisfactory, for she gave him a little slap on the shoulder and said:

"Good-boy, Gene, San Luis is agreeing with you. Yes, we were snowed in for nearly three weeks. Papa's been half crazy. And you've been in town two days, Prescott says. It must have been dull here all alone."

which, without seeing his face, would have suggested weakness and lack of purpose. Now as he looked at his father with a slight and somewhat foolish air of triumph, the old man responded to his remark with a sound which resembled a grunt of scornful incredulity.

"Really, Gene," said his sister, her manner of fond gratification in marked contrast to her father's roughness, "that's the best news I've heard up to hear that when you come out. Of course you'll get the ranch. I always knew you would. I always knew you could pull up and be as straight as anybody if you tried."

The old man, who had been kicking off his rubbers, here raised his head with a bull-like movement, and suddenly roared at the retreating butler, who was vanishing toward the dining-room.

"My cigars. Where in hell are they? Why doesn't somebody attend here?" The servant, with a start of alarm and a murmured excuse, disappeared for a moment, to reappear, hurrying breathlessly with a box of cigars. Cannon selected one and turned to the stairway.

"How long are you down far?" he said to his son as he began ascending. "I thought a week, perhaps two," answered the young man. "A fellow gets damned lonely, down there in the country."

There was something apologetic, almost pleading, in his words and way of speech. He looked after his father's receding figure as if quite oblivious to the rudeness of the large, retiring back and the manner of careless scorn.

"Make it three," said the Bonanza King, turning his head slightly and throwing the sentence over his shoulder. Gene Cannon was now twenty-nine years of age and had drunk since his eighteenth year. His mother had died in ignorance of his vice. When his father discovered it, it simply augmented the old man's impatience against the feeble youth who would carry on his name and be one of the inheritors of his fortune. Bill Cannon had never cared much for his only son. He had early seen the stuff of which the boy was made. "Doesn't amount to a hill of beans," he would say, throwing the words at his wife over the bitten end of his cigar. He could have forgiven the drinking, as he could other vices, if Gene had had some of his own force, some of that driving power which had carried him triumphant over friend and foe. But the boy had no initiative, no brains, no energy. "How did I ever come to have such a son?" he queried sometimes in an access of disgust in which the surprise was stronger than the disgust. The question possessed a sort of scientific interest for him which was deeper than the personal and over which the disappointed magnate would ponder.

As Gene grew older and his intemperance assumed more serious proportions, the father's scorn grew more open and was augmented by a sort of exasperated dislike. The Bonanza King had no patience with those who failed from ill-health or the persistent persecutions of bad luck. His contention was that they should not have been ill, and they should have conquered their bad luck. He had not excuses for those who were beaten back against the wall—only death should be able to do that. But when it came to a useless, hampering vice, a weakness that in itself was harmless enough, but that was allowed to gain paralyzing proportions, his original contempt was intensified into a fierce intolerance which would have been terrifying if it had not been tempered with an indifferent disdain.

Rose's attitude toward her brother was a source of secret wonder to him. She loved the feeble youth; a tie of the deepest affection existed between them, upon which Gene's intemperance seemed to have no effect. The Bonanza King had always admitted that the ways of the gentler sex were beyond his comprehension, but that the two women he had known best—his wife and his daughter—should have lavished the tenderest love upon an intemperate, incompetent, useless weakling was to him one of the fathomless mysteries of life.

It was Rose's suggestion that Gene should be withdrawn from temptation by sending him to the country. As the only son of Bill Cannon he was the object of a variety of attentions and allurement in the city to which a stronger-willed man might have succumbed. The father readily agreed to the plan. He could graciously subscribe to all Rose said, as the removal of Gene's amiable visage and uninspired conversation would not cause him any particular distress or sense of loss.

But when Rose unfolded the whole of her scheme he was not so enthusiastically in accord with her. It was that Gene should be put on his father's ranch—the historic Rancho of the Santa Trinidad near San Luis Obispo—as manager, that all responsibility should be placed in his hands, and that if, during one year's probation, he should remain sober and maintain a record of quiet conduct and general good behavior, the ranch should be turned over to him as his own property, to be developed on such lines as he thought best.

The Rancho of the Santa Trinidad was one of the finest pieces of agricultural property in California. The Bonanza King visited it once a year, and at intervals received crates of fruit and spring chickens raised upon it. This was about all he got out of it, but when he heard Rose calmly arranging to have it become Gene's property, he felt like a man who suddenly finds himself being robbed. He had difficulty in restraining a roar of refusal. Had it been any one but Rose he would not have restrained it.

Of course he gave way to her, as he always did. He even gave way gracefully with an effect of a generosity too large to bother over trifles, not because he felt it but because he did not want Rose to guess how it "went against him." Under the genial blandness of his demeanor he reconciled himself to the situation by the thought that Gene would certainly never keep sober for a year, and that there was therefore no fear of the richest piece of land in the state passing into the hands of that dull and incapable young man.

The year was nearly up now. It had but three months to run and Gene's record had been exemplary. He had come to the city only twice, when his father noticed with a jealousy-watchful eye that he had been resolutely abstemious in the matter of liquor and that his interest in the great property he managed had been the strongest he had so far evinced in anything. The thought that Gene might possibly live up to his side of the bargain and win the ranch caused the old man to experience that feeling of blank chagrin which is the state of mind of the unexpectedly swindled. He felt like a king who has been daringly and successfully robbed by a slave.

At dinner that evening Gene was very talkative. He told of his life on the ranch, of its methodical monotony, of its seclusion, for he saw little of his neighbors and seldom went in to the town. Rose listened with eager interest, and the old man with a sulky, glowering attention. At intervals he shot a piercing look at his boy, eying him sidewise with a cogitating intensity of observation. His remarks were few, but Gene was so loquacious that there was little opportunity for another voice to be heard. He prattled on like a happy child, recounting the minutest details of his life after the fashion of those who live much alone.

In the light of the crystal lamp that spread a ruffled shade of yellow silk over the center of the table, he was seen to be quite unlike his father or sister. His jet-black hair and uniformly pale skin resembled his mother's, but his face in its full, rounded contours, slightly turned-up nose, and eyebrows as thick as strips of fur, had a heaviness hers had lacked. Some people thought him good-looking, and there was a sort of unusual, Latin picturesqueness in the combination of his curly black hair, which he wore rising up in a bulwark of waves from his forehead, his white skin, and the small, dark mustache, delicate as an eyebrow, that shaded his upper lip. It was one of his father's grievances against him that he would have made a pretty girl, and that his soft, affectionate character would have been quite charming in a woman. Now, listening to him, it seemed to the older man as if it were just the kind of talk one might expect from Gene. The father had difficulty in suppressing a snort of derision when he heard the young man recounting to Rose his troubles with his Chinese cook.

Before dinner was over Gene excused himself on the plea that he was going to the theater. "I'm such a hayseed now," he said as he rose, "that I don't want to miss a thing. Haven't seen a play for six months and I'm just crazy to see anything. 'Monte Christo,' 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' 'East Lynne.' I'm not particular, anything'll suit me."

"Don't you go over to San Luis!" growled his father sulky. "They have plays there sometimes, I suppose."

"What a damned fool that boy is!" Rose was up in arms at once. "Why, papa, how can you say that! Especially when you see how he's improved. It's wonderful. He's another man. You can tell in a minute he's not been drinking, he takes such an interest in everything and is so full of work and plans."

"Is he?" said her father dryly. "Maybe so, but that don't prevent him from being a damned fool."

"You're unjust to Gene. Why do you think he's a fool?" "Just because he happens to be one. You might as well ask me why I think the sun rises in the east and sets in the west. That's what it does, and when I say it does, I'm not criticizing or complaining, I'm only stating the plain facts."

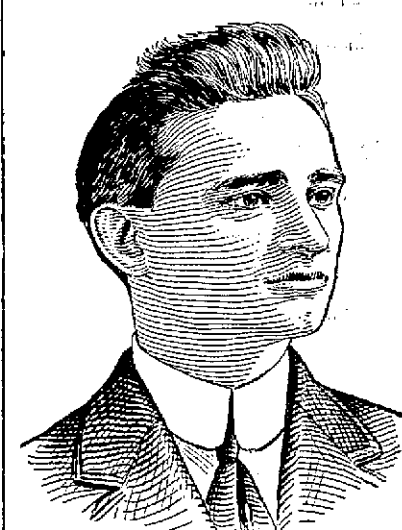

Rose made a murmur of protest and he went on. (To be Continued.)

A Godsend. An esteemed German who draws a well earned salary from the city of New York, says the Sun, was talking about a case of sudden death the other day. It was due to an accident. It was nobody's fault. It was a veritable bolt from a clear sky. All this had impressed the German deeply. "Vy," he said awesomely, "it was a regular Godsend."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 26, 1872.—Fire Cisterns: The fire cistern at the first ward school house is completed and ready for use. Its capacity is five hundred barrels and it was constructed at a cost of two hundred and twenty dollars. We are informed that there are two cisterns adjoining the high school building, one of which the board is willing to give for fire purposes, providing the city will put both cisterns in a serviceable condition. Better do it. Fire cisterns are needed to make our department effective.

The Grub Worm: The grub worm is working havoc in the cornfields of Rock and Plymouth. They work at the roots of the corn, eating off the fibres and killing the plant. In rich, well manured fields, these pests are most numerous and destructive. Farmers are losing their best fields of corn from their depredations.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY.
An uneventful year will follow with the usual occurrences. A good time for study and especially for building up the health.

Those born today will be quick and accomplished, with good all around ability. Their material success is reasonably certain but in love and domestic affairs there will be cloud.

BY WALT MASON

I have a picture of the sea; it's in a rustic frame; and it's a great relief to me when I am tired and lame. I often sit for hours and gaze upon that dainty blue and white, and I am

CHEAP VACATIONS. where the billow plays, and I can taste the brine. I hear the cheerful mermaids chant the latest ragtime song, and see old Neptune gallivant the ocean depths along. I rise refreshed when I have viewed that chromo for a time, and take my axe and whack up wood with industry sublime. I have a picture of the woods, the forest robin-chirled; that painting surely is the goods when I am faint and tired. I contemplate it by the hour and leave the slugging mart; I think I'm in a woodland bowyer, close to Dame Nature's heart. I hear the sighing of the pine, the rustling of the birch; oh, never may that dainty of mine be taken from its perch!

ILLUSIONS.
"Oh! men were deceivers ever!"
She said with a heart full of gall.
But if men were deceivers never,
The girls wouldn't like 'em at all.

Find a deceiver.

A splendid picture of an Alp confronts my glowing eyes; that mountain rears its snowy scalp clear up against the skies! And so, with pictures and with books I junket round the sphere, and visit interesting nooks, see wonders far and near; I see the works of ancient Greeks, and tread the streets of Rome, and climb the farthest mountain peaks, and still remain at home.

DINNER STORIES

"Mrs. Nagsby is without a servant again," said the woman in the first-floor flat to her neighbor across the hall.

"Well, did you ever! I never hear of any one who changed so often as she does. What's the trouble this time?"

I think it's the result of a little dialogue I overheard yesterday. I heard Mrs. N. call impatiently: "Nora! drop everything at once and come here!"

"Yes, ma'am," was the answer, in pleasant tones that surprised me, for Nora and her mistress had been fighting like two cats all the time. Then I heard a wail; "Nora, what's that baby crying for now?" cried Mrs. N.; and Nora, with a wicked giggle, replied, "Well, I think it's because I dropped him, ma'am."

An English actor was a member of a company snowbound in the Sierras while en route from California to the east. Before their train was pulled out of the drifts they had been reduced to eating the coarse fare of the railroad laborers, and got little enough even of that. So that they all had a magnificent hunger on when the train reached a small station at which there was a restaurant, and the Englishman was the first to find a seat at the table.

"Bring me in a hurry," he said to the landlady, a burly western man, "a porterhouse steak, some deviled kidneys, a brace of chops, plenty of vegetables, and two bottles of Bass' bitter beer."

The landlady stuck his head out of the dining-room door, and yelled to somebody in the rear apartment: "Say, Bill, tell the band to play 'Rule Britannia.' The Prince of Wales has come."

"The time will come," thundered the suffragist orator, "when women will get a man's wages!"

"Yes," sadly muttered a man on the rear seat, "next Saturday night!"

It was the first night of a new play.

"I say," remarked the author to the manager, "that scene shifter over there is a most peculiar looking fellow."

"Yes; he's an Eskimo," said the manager.

"An Eskimo! What on earth made you take him on?"

"Oh, I thought it would be a comfort to see one happy face if the play turns out to be a frost!"

Aesop's Fables.

Fable springs from the universal need of men to express their thoughts by concrete images and emblems, and is practically coeval with humanity itself—the east, the land of myth, is the natural home of the fable. From Hindustan the Sanskrit fables passed to China, Thibet and Persia, reaching Greece at an early period, since it is now known that many of the fables which passed as Aesop's are identical with those of the east.—New York American.

A Scientific Achievement.

Modern science has produced no such effective agency in the relief of indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness or impure blood as Meritol Tonic Digestive, the result of the best minds of the American Drug and Press Association, composed of druggists and newspaper men all over the country. Try this great remedy. Reliable Drug Co., Association Members.
